“AND THE ALMIGHTY SPOKE TO MOSHE IN THE WILDERNESS OF SINAI” (Bamidbar 1:1)

The Midrash states on this verse: “Whoever does not make himself open and free like a wilderness will not be able to acquire wisdom and Torah.”

This refers to having the trait of humility which enables a person to learn from everyone and to teach everyone.

A person with arrogance will only be willing to learn from someone if he feels it is fitting to his honor to do so. If, for example, someone much younger than he has Torah knowledge that he is lacking, he will not ask that person to teach him for he feels that would lower his status. If there is something he does not understand, he will be very careful before he asks anyone to explain it to him. He has to size up the situation to see if it is fitting for him. Similarly, he will only be willing to teach someone if he feels that he will gain honor from teaching this person and it is worth his while.

The humble person’s thoughts are solely on gaining Torah knowledge. He is willing to learn from anyone who knows something he does not, even though he might have much more overall Torah knowledge. He wants to spread and acquire as much Torah knowledge as he can. He does not focus on his own ego but on gaining and sharing wisdom.

For this week we should look for wisdom and be open to listening to what other people have to say. Whether it be Torah related, family related or business related. We should seek wisdom from everyone and realize how every person has something to offer us.

Have an enlightening Shabbos!
